

Time distortion effects of UFOs and their relationship to the theory of the soft spot.

Donald Pilz.

Donald Pilz has provided us with two vital observations in his 2 previous articles in FSR, his first that extremely rapid air vortex movements caused by UFOs can generate characteristic exploding ring shaped clouds visible on Doppler radar. His second (FSR 51.1) that UFOs use a characteristic black aperture, the soft spot to enter/exit our atmosphere. Now his third article in the series examines the question of time in all this. Donald reviews cases where time has been noticeably altered by the presence of a UFO related energy field, a phenomenon that he himself experienced whilst observing a UFO leaving through a soft spot opening.

One of the more unusual and stranger aspects of observing both a UFO craft and a soft spot opening is the occasional time distortion and the temporal paralysis effect on the observer and his environment. Does this effect arise from an altered physical or mental state, or a combination of the two? Also why are there only limited numbers of cases where the witnesses recall feeling these effects? Why is it not a universal property of all UFO encounters?

In my many searches of the UFO literature the time distortion effects are normally described as brief, from a few seconds or minutes. It is my opinion that these cases are completely separate to missing time reports (possible abductions) that can last much longer.

The transient time distortion effects commonly reported with close proximity UFO sightings must be associated with the unknown energy field that is emitted from the craft, and or the waves that are emitted from the soft spot opening. I have suggested in my previous articles that the soft spot is in fact a huge gravity wave distortion that bends light back towards itself, hence appearing black.

In conventional physics it is considered possible for immense gravity fields to slow time. I suspect that there is an immensely powerful "inert motionless time-field" created around both the soft spot and the UFO craft that does indeed alter our atmospheric mass (molecules, atoms, electrons, protons, etc) so that it all becomes an inert time-field. If for an aerial object the sheer size of this "inert energy field" extended itself all the way down to the earth's surface, it might just explain the time distortion and paralysis effects felt by some of the observers. If the field strength is of highly variable intensity and distribution when it touches the ground then this might explain why the majority of UFO cases do not feature this phenomenon. Could these special fields of null time resemble the packed isobars of atmospheric pressure for a ground witness to experience the exact conditions inside the soft spot? I was over two miles away from the object during my sighting, yet I was hit by its full intensity.

This action of this extended grounded time-field might also explain another more commonly reported type of effect from UFO sightings; the total absence of sounds or natural noises while observing the event. Some observers recall that there was an umbrella of total silence when the craft or opening was present, and that these everyday sounds immediately returned to normal when the craft and or opening disappeared.

My personal experience from witnessing a craft and the soft spot opening was as I drove my car along at approximately 60 - 65 miles per hour. I had my window cracked open because I smoke and the only sounds I heard during my sighting were that of my own analytical thoughts of what I was witnessing. As soon as the object disappeared completely into the opening, (it was as if someone had flipped a light switch on) I could move again, and I could hear the sounds of traffic and the wind rushing through my window. I was so startled by the sudden sounds of everything returning to normal that I instantly squeezed the steering wheel real hard.

In some typical accounts I have reviewed where everything in the temporal field froze to create one extended unit of "null time." The following cases feature null-time where the body is also paralysed; leaving only the mind of the observer to contemplate what is happening. Starting with my own recollection:

02/08/96 Indianapolis

The moment the white pulse of the UFO had dimmed it immediately began moving south at about 5-8 mph, but not gradually building up to speed, but instantly! It was moving at 5-8 mph. This is when I noticed that I couldn't move my eyes, hands or body and that my eyes were totally fixed on the moving object. I still had my peripheral vision and from the left side I could tell that the columns from the Fishers overpass bridge were there and I began to worry that I might crash into them, and from my right side vision I could tell my father was sitting there in the passenger seat with his head turned and asleep.

19/03/93 Los Alamos New Mexico.

Three large disks (at least 1/2 mile in diameter) seemed to rip through a fabric of camouflage of the scenery about a mile in the sky and slowed to a point that their spinning effect seemed almost nil; however still moving. A very large opening of the earth occurred and each disk entered one-by-one into the opening. All the while myself and my co-workers were frozen, speechless, and in some sort of stupor. Once the last of the disks was in the opening, the opening closed and we all went back to work as if nothing happened. I ask if anyone saw the disks and the opening and they just ignored me. I guess that I was the only one to have seen the event.

15/06/68 Livingston, New Jersey.

I was eight years old when this event occurred; I was sitting with my baby sister in a Pontiac convertible while my brother was sitting in the front seat with my Mother. This occurred while we were heading home from my grandmother's home in Short Hills, NJ on Old Short Hills Road prior to reaching Walnut Street in Livingston. I remember the UFO was hovering near the property that had a hidden reservoir behind it, and a lot of power lines. My mom was frightened to a point where she tried to speed away in our car, however time stopped, we could not move! She remained fixed behind the wheel of the Pontiac convertible. I asked her years later why this scared her and she refused to speak ever about it. It was really fascinating I thought. We all had mixed emotions. My Mom was frightened, I wished to leave the car, and she kept screaming for me not too! Until now I was not allowed by my family to discuss the event. We held it in our family. My brother has zero problems talking about this, or my sister but I knew all about UFO encounters as my father was in the Korean War and the US Air Force.

03/10/99 Houston, Texas

This occurred on a busy Houston street. I'm really hesitant about this, but I have to get it out. I was talking to a friend of mine, walking down the street, in mid-sentence he froze, everyone around me froze, a HUGE, spinning, multi-coloured disc-shaped craft appeared suddenly over me, tilted downward at me, and retreated backwards as quickly as it appeared. This all lasted maybe 10-15 seconds, then everyone started to move and my friend finished his sentence. I was sure he had seen it (his eyes had been open). I stammered unable to speak. I tried to tell him, I asked him "Did you?" I was VERY freaked out when I told him what had happened. He looked like he thought I was joking, but then he saw my distress. I've told this to two psychiatrists and a doctor. I guess it's too much for anyone to believe.

In these next three cases the null time environment is completely frozen but the witness is unaffected and active in the environment. Anecdotally, witnesses have described meeting UFO occupants under these conditions which must be terrifying and disorientating in this wholly unfamiliar environment.

15/06/71 Chuluota, Florida.

I was a young boy of 9 or 10 living in Florida, we where about to have bad weather. A large group of dark black clouds where rolling and I mean rolling in. The wind was blowing hard and 3 or 4 of us where in the back yard putting away things so not to get blown away. Then as I stopped and looked up everything in the yard stopped moving the wind stopped blowing, it was like the world stopped. Everyone stayed still and it was like a freeze frame in a movie. The whole yard got light like someone turned on a flood light overhead and I looked up and saw a large Triangle over our head with a bright light in the middle. I could move but everyone else stopped in mid-movement No wind No sound. No one has every talked about it and I don't think they even remember it.

1979 Los Angeles, California

I used to live in Los Angeles, and my sightings occurred there. The first one was in 1979, when I was 9 years old, and was playing in the backyard with a girl from my neighbourhood. I remember that suddenly everything went silent, no more traffic sounds, birds or people talking, everything seemed to freeze except us, and then something caught our eyes right above us, I remember the sky was grey, because of smog, and this disk was smooth and dark silver, and stood well above the telephone lines, and as sudden as it appeared it was gone, it streaked out of sight. I don't know how long this incident was, maybe a minute.

27/12/2000 Adelaide Hills, Australia.

Richard H. of, A.C.T. reported, on (Wednesday) December 27, 2000, at 4:16 p.m. I went outside to attend to my trailer and to fold up the tarpaulin. As I pulled up one corner of the tarp to fold it, I could see it had leaves stuck to it. I was shocked to see that the leaves were another colour. I saw that the leaves were brilliant, brilliant orange I looked at my hands and the too were the same colour. I had a feeling the colour was coming from above in the sky and I looked up, but I couldn't see any objects. There was no cloud movement in the sky and the clouds were a really strange colour. Nothing was moving. Not a sound. Not even the sound of rustling leaves. No birds singing, nothing. I got scared and went towards the house to get my wife to come out and take a look at the leaves and the sky. But when she came out, the sky went back to normal and the leaves were green and all sound had returned.

I would hypothesise that whether one remains paralysed or mobile in the UFO time-field rather depends if your body is fully tuned to the specific field conditions, which again may randomly occur due to the hypothetical distribution of isobars of field strength. This field tuning immediately reminds one of the small boxes used to hold field position reportedly worn by the surviving participants in M.K. Jessup's account of the Philadelphia experiment. After re-analyzing over 400 cases that I found during my research I've come to a very important conclusion about the action of the UFO craft prior to its relationship to the soft spot opening. Whenever the case identifies the UFO craft at standstill, motionless or not moving for a brief period of time and prior to its moving towards a flash of light, the soft opening, an invisible curtain in the sky or a portal. appears to me that the craft is hesitating. Why? I speculate that it's waiting for the soft spot to arrive so it might depart through the opening.

Another good case from Kennewick, Washington describes the craft arriving quickly from a slit opening, pauses and hesitates for a fraction of a second and then continues forward departing into another slit opening a short distance away. No what does this imply? Perhaps this particular craft did not arrive here to visit at all; in fact its main purpose may have been to catch an immediate ride through to another nearby soft spot that was quickly forming so it could continue on to its final destination.

20/08/93 19:00 Kennewick, WA

If you can, imagine this; part of the sky opens, a metallic cigar shaped object darts out, stops, then exits at a tremendous speed through an opening in the sky across from, disappearing. That's the best way to explain it. It happened so fast that if my crewman and I hadn't been looking we would have missed it completely. We had just completed work on light on the snake river and were travelling by boat to the boat ramp behind one of the dams (I can't remember which one) was just the two of us on the river and we were trying to reach the ramp before it got to dark. We both looked up to our 10 o'clock position at about position angle 30 degrees and the object appeared. I can't say with any certainty the distance how big the object was, but it was close enough to see that it was dark grey and elongated (like a fat short cigar). We just looked at each other and said, "What the heck was that?" The trip back to Kennewick we tossed around ideas as to what it might be but ultimately failed to come up with anything. It was like the thing opened a hole in the sky, entered our "realm", paused, and then left through another opening. There were no lights, no sound, no trailing vapour, no other aircraft, nothing. In fact if I hadn't been looking right at it I would have dismissed it altogether. Sky conditions were clear, visibility was 10 nautical miles, and seas were calm.

FSR Comment: Derek Dempster's observation in the editorial of 51.3 suggested many sightings may be UFOs merely passing through our Earth's field during transit while travelling to and from somewhere else entirely.

Another example is in my case, where I observed the object sitting stationary in the sky motionless for a few seconds, before it raised itself up vertical on its own axis and stopped on top. It then slowly moved in a perfectly straight line into the slit opening soft spot and disappeared bit by bit. I now believe that the craft wasn't there to observe any event on the ground or change anything, but it was there waiting for the soft spot to open so it could leave. My immediate thoughts after the event were that it must have arrived here through the slit opening because that's how it departed.

There is now much evidence to advocate that the UFO crafts generate powerful gravitational or electro-magnetic fields that are capable of warping space/time and creating dimensional portals for interstellar space travel. Now one must ask is where does this powerful energy vortex that creates inert mass originate to produce these soft spot openings, portals, wormholes, dimensional doorways?

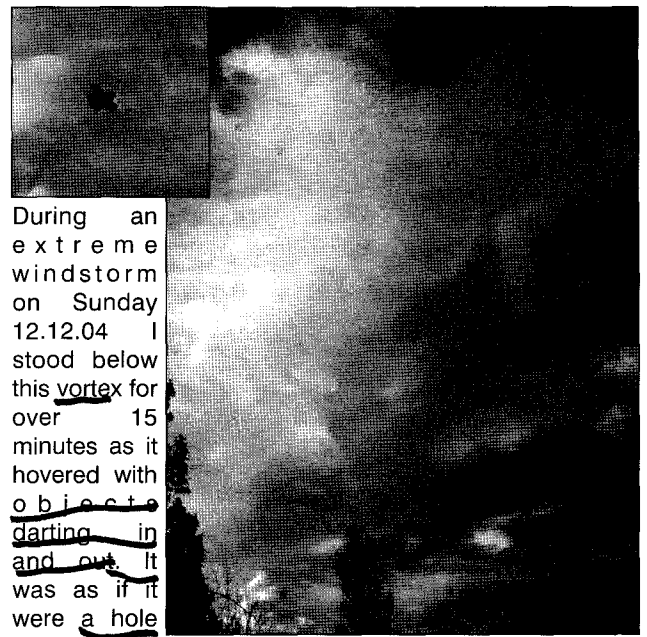

- 1.) Does the UFO craft itself carry a portable on-board stable wormhole used for interstellar space travel?
- 2.) Is the soft spot opening a generated non-local event, a wormhole whose portal is generated from an installation elsewhere in the universe and then sent to Earth to be used for time and space travel?
- 3.) Could the soft openings have been created right here on earth, originating not only from our present time, but from UFO craft operating through time fields in our past or our future?

A recent find in the FSR archive reveals that the soft spot term had previously appeared in a U.S. paranormal journal in an article by William H Whammond twenty years before Donald Pilz used it independently. The following quote is taken from this article; Pursuit Vol 10. No1 winter 1977.

Twentieth century science already uses such a "soft spot" concept. Only they call it a "window." NASA calls their soft spot "Launch-Windows." When electronics engineers working with microwave, infrared and sonar, etc. talk about "windows" they mean a tiny few times (or frequencies) when/where everything is "just right" for their launch, and for microwave, infrared or sonar to "go through." A "window" is a fortuitous conjunction of the technical "circumstances" involved.

It sounds almost like Astrology, and in a way it is! Certain authors (e.g. John Keel) have drawn graphs of "number of UFOs sighted" and "number of poltergeist occurrences" for the same period. Such graphs show some close correspondences! Other authors (e.g. Capt. Cathie) find a correlation between UFOs, earthquakes and Volcanoes. The famed Charles Fort cited a lot of actual records of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions which occurred following "Novas" out in supposedly "unreachable" space!

But, once again the essential point is being missed; a "window" must have somehow occurred, and UFOs have made use of it to arrive here. Now the fact that poltergeists (and maybe astrologers) also used said free window doesn't have to mean that they "belong" to UFOs in any manner whatsoever! Put it another way. If you leave your bedroom window open and cats, bats, moths and snails (and maybe even a burglar) enter, does one conclude that there is a "mysterious connection" between all such creatures? No! One concludes that everything that can takes advantage of an open "window" because it constitutes the path of least resistance.

During an extreme windstorm on Sunday 12.12.04 I stood below this vortex for over 15 minutes as it hovered with object darting in and out. It was as if it were a hole in the sky.

Also please note the UFO craft on lower left behind the 100ft tall trees (see close-up left). I was facing to the North Western sky in my back yard. After experiencing numerous tornado sightings in the Midwest and moving away because of same; witnessing this vortex just gave me the willies. I felt as if it were a doorway into somewhere? A Sky Spirit? John in Portland, Oregon.

This important photo from Oregon (right), may illustrate the central soft spot cloud vortex and the possibility that a peculiar flying animal that may have entered our atmosphere through the hypothetical soft spot at its centre. UFOs may indeed have nothing to do with crypto-zoological animals observed in areas of high UFO activity other than their simple sharing of a conduit into our world. Certainly the tales that have enthralled Fortean researchers for the last hundred years could be a peripheral by-product of soft spot defects. Perhaps such Fortean events have blurred the fields of research so that rational observations of UFOs are contaminated by the very queer men and beasts which the "old world" would associate with the lower realms of demonology, and the middle kingdoms of mythology and fable.

A moment of synchronicity arises with the mention of Charles Forts ideas that of events in distant space affecting our Earth and a recent piece written by David Barclay on a hypothetical electro-gravitic sensor.

I have something that may or may not be of interest to you, but there is a chap down in Perth Australia who is into radio-telescopes and he has built an electro-gravitic sensor, which is hooked up to a 9 meter dish. On May 27 he received a strong signal from deep space indicating an explosion. He has gone to great pains to ensure that the electro-gravitic sensor is not capable of picking up electromagnetic effects. He has other sensors for that purpose. His name is Brian Sallur at waro@westnet.com.au and he has a web site which is <http://members.westnet.com.au/waro/contents.htm>

Brian strikes me as a very bright guy, who is getting a lot of resistance from the academic world, which is to be expected I suppose. If he has actually established instantaneous communication in relation to picking up stellar events in the universe he has really achieved something of note, which in my book would indicate that he deserves all the support we can give him. It's only one more step to develop a system capable of receiving intelligent communications of one sort or another in an instantaneous manner. So I have suggested that a field frequency modulator would allow him to tune in to interstellar communications, but I'm not sure he understands my concept. Just one verified message from space would change the whole picture in respect to the existence of ET. I thought you might be interested in this development.

FSR: Does this concept of an electro-gravitic sensor bypass all the speed of light delays of looking into space - taking light years to give or receive a message?

Yes, the electro-gravitic sensor bypasses the concept of light speed communication and theoretically allows for instantaneous communication.

FSR: What was the explosion in distant space in your opinion? Was it one we could not see from light that has not yet reached us? Is this the significance of this technology - real time communication? Can I have a layman's explanation on how it works?

Yes, the explosion occurred in deep space. What this sensor picked up would normally take thousands of years to reach us in respect to a regular EM sensor hooked up to a dish. The electro-gravitic sensor registers what is happening in deep space as it is happening, not thousands of years after the fact.

The issue of light speed is a subject unto itself and is very important in understanding what we see when we look into space. As you might be aware, Townsend Brown considered the universe to exist as a simultaneous condition, which some people refer to as spooky effects at a distance. A regular EM sensor used for radio-telescope work picks up signals and effects occurring at a distance, where it takes a very long time for those effects to reach the dish and register via the sensor and onto a graph. An electro-gravitic sensor picks up field distortions which are received instantaneously regardless of distance. Much work was done on this during the 50s and 60s most of which remains classified.

Townsend Brown invented the electro-gravitic sensor, which is encased in a spherical ball of lead, but Dr. Brown's work remains classified. So what Brian Sullar has achieved is quite remarkable, as he has built a duplicate of Brown's electro-gravitic sensor; to the best of my knowledge he is the only one since Brown to do so. Of course the academic world is not going to like this because it shatters their assumptions in the most effective manner. I have notified SETI of his work, but so far no interest.

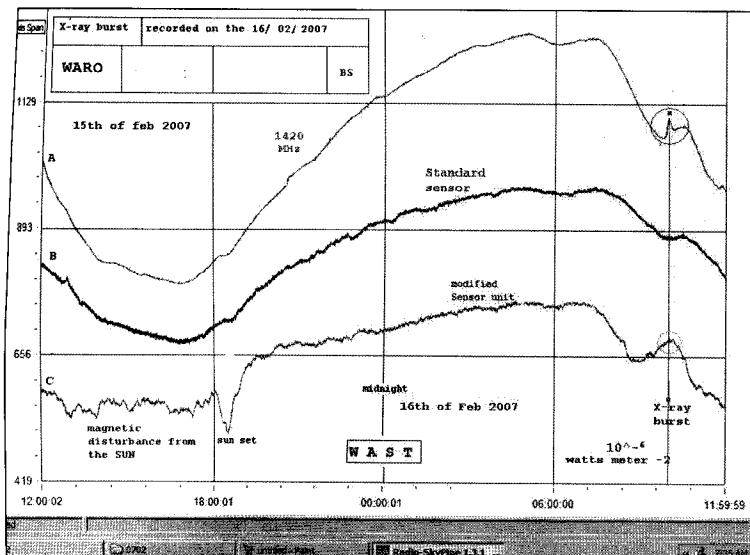

An electro-gravitic sensor allows direct communication through the underlying dynamic energy of field, which in effect bypasses the physical restraints of the linear world. The sensor is in fact a unified field system unto itself and as such has direct communication with the full range of time field differentials existing within the scope of its own field. It has an instantaneous view of the universe as it exists relative to the sensor. I have suggested to Brian that the addition of a field frequency modulator would allow for the sensor to provide for instantaneous communication with other intelligent civilizations existing throughout the universe. A modulator would allow us to tune in to a variety of different frequencies much like tuning a radio. An amazing and mind bending consideration when you realize that this is actually possible and simply a matter of getting on with it and getting it done.

The only problem I see is the possibility that the sensor is picking up events before the fact, but a modulator could make adjustments for that if it turns out to be the case. In other words, if the underlying field energy of the sensor is too high it could be picking up occurrences occurring in the future. This is earth shaking stuff. Harry and this Brian is one bright lad who really does have his head screwed on straight. I have a copy of the read outs if you would like to have a look at them.

A statement by Brian Sallur of The West Australian Radio Observatory Chittering.

For a very long time, I have been pondering on the number of theories presented over the last century, as to the nature and source of Gravity around a body in space. I have ceased reading the opinions of most scientists, and have resorted to my own ideas on the subject. These scholars have changed their collective minds so often over the years, that it would have been more truthful for them to have had admitted that they didn't know. Their obsession and almost total reliance on mathematics to solve the problem has left them with buckets of theories, and no facts.

I agree with these conclusions: That Gravity as we experience it is a compulsory acquisition. It comes about as a consequence of a body of measurable mass (density) and size (capture area) occupying a position in space within the Universe. Further more I believe that Gravity is extracted from the Vacuum of Space, as are all other energies that we are familiar with, not to mention all those energies we have yet to discover. I also think that the Sun's corona is an excellent example of this process. This explains admirably why the area below the corona is considerably cooler. The interface with the ether is a continual process which I believe is an "Instantaneous Transition" No velocity is involved in the process.

Last year I discovered that the Caduceus coil can be used as a useful receiving antenna, not for observing Gravity, but to detect ULF pulses of magnetism, particularly those pulses emanating from the Sun. To achieve this, I used a circuit based on the "Gravity wave detector" conceived by Gregory Hodowanic, and combined this circuit with a specially designed Caduceus coil. The results you will see on the charts I have sent you.

The middle trace is the completely shielded module and this unit has been subjected to exhaustive tests, lead shielding, and a thick steel capsule heated to 70 Degrees C and buried more than a meter in the ground. Despite all that the unit continued to record its profile as before. As a result of this project, I have decided to design a system to attempt to locate "Scalar signals of a discrete nature" suggesting it is from an intelligent source. I must point out that my coils are "air wound", that is to say they have no ferrite core and are at least 6.5 cm in diameter, and 1 meter in length. The coils consist of a total of 22 turns of 4 wire cable. Please find enclosed a picture of our 9 meter antenna.

Notes on Time distortion. David Barclay

When I read Elizabeth Klarer's reference to, "time field differentials" on page 18 of FSR 51.3 edition I almost fell off my chair. Whoa, I think Liz had been talking to ET, this gal talked the talk. Time distortions are very real and cause physical phenomena to occur.

FSR: Why are people experiencing paralysis and cold while consciously aware of a UFO in their vicinity? Surely this means the brain is already adapted to observing time distortion while the peripheral nervous system is not and becomes paralysed. We can think while passing through the anomaly but we can't act. How could the puddle of time distortion flow onto witnesses many hundreds of yards away, is this a property of a specific kind of light emission; that if it falls on you time shifts from its regular pattern?

In response to your question, the consciousness of a person corresponds to a field condition, (time field energy), in relation to their ability to think and remember, while their body functions correspond to an EM response affected by the condition of field. So your reasoning is quite sound in relation to saying the brain is already adapted to observing time distortion. The cold is associated with an increase in the underlying energy of the environment, as affected by the UFO. And the paralysis occurs for much the same reason.

To understand this we first have to realize that there is a distinct time field differential existing between the UFO and the field of the planet in which it is operating, which makes a UFO virtually impossible to shoot down. You don't have a fixed target to shoot at, as it stays ahead of you. In other words you only see it after the fact, in relation to where it was a second ago as opposed to where it is now. In other words a UFO can enter our environment without adapting to a uniform method of access, where the UFO maintains a time field differential affecting a time field distortion. Unfortunately there is some degree of danger involved here as the UFO represents a non-uniform potential relative to the uniform field of the earth. So it is advisable to keep stay away from a UFO unless invited to do otherwise by someone who knows what they are doing, such as an occupant of the craft.

It is possible to investigate uniform time field differentials in any deep underground setting. For example; at the 1400 meter level of the Creighton Mine in Sudbury, Ontario Canada there is a horticultural nursery which has been in operation for many years. Using grow lights, soil and water, pine seeds germinate and grow into 2 year old seedlings during the course of a short 5 months, which is impossible at surface using state of the art greenhouse equipment. That is more than a 400% increase in the rate of growth, plus the young trees are more resistant to disease than trees grown at surface. It is an increase in the underlying energy with depth underground which is responsible for these phenomena, a uniform time field differential. This is somewhat parallel to the time field differentials associated with UFO, as the underlying energy of the UFO must remain higher than that of the earth's field just to remain airborne. But the time field differential associated with the UFO is not uniform to that of the earth, it is out of sync so to say. This can result in all kinds of phenomena occurring, such as engines failing or lights turning off and on etc.

Yes, it is an EM effect, but the EM effect is a dynamic response to the condition of field affecting the engine or the light. It is the energy level of the UFO affecting a non-uniform time field differential that causes these bizarre things to occur. The element of light involved has to be dealt with separately as this is a subject unto itself, in relation to a light emission that falls on you.

The field of the craft extends outward in all directions, but the energy of the craft is focused to its core, to the centre of field and the energy itself does not radiate, but what does radiate is a differential in time field frequency. It is time, in terms of non-linear time field frequency acceleration, which is the underlying energy of universe and every system of universe including a UFO has a different rate of time field frequency acceleration. And both gravity and electromagnetism are the effects of time field differentials in terms of dynamic responses to the condition of field, which remain proportional to the inverse square rule.

It's not all that difficult once you get the hang of the idea to understand the simplicity of the UFO phenomena. And you wonder why they have trouble back engineering UFO? The brain consists of series of neurological receptor relays which link our consciousness to the condition of field, such as keeping us in contact with our memory which actually exists beyond the brain. Memory is a field condition and not some physical depository within the brain where we store information. So our ability to function in a state of consciousness is not dependent upon our physical ability to remain mobile. We could be completely paralyzed and still remain consciously aware of our existence and our surroundings.

FSR Comment: Time distortion phenomena may represent the highest level security implication - deliberate time dilation and any subsequent actions taken during immobilisation would reveal our open vulnerability to any entities wielding such a technology.

Summer 1989. Three Oval UFOs momentarily stop a Hercules transport in mid-air.

FSR letter archive: Wosborough Dale Barnsley. (James and his friend Robert were minors at the time of the sighting which was reported by their grandfather).

James and Robert were standing outside when their attention focussed on a large military aircraft going east. It was in an lane regularly used from Manchester for east-bound aircraft. As they watched the aircraft, three oval objects appeared out of nowhere and circled around it for a few seconds. Then they shot off east in the same sudden mysterious way as they appeared.

The striking thing was that the aircraft was held stationary whilst the objects flew around it. James said he had the distinct impression that the aircraft was being examined. After the objects left, the aircraft did not drop but rather continued with its journey.

The grandfather states, "My thoughts on this affair are that the plane was being checked out internally. No craft would need to come so close or to circle around an aeroplane to identify as this can be achieved from a considerable distance."

AS TIME GOES BY: UFO's AND TIME DISTORTION

For most people, spotting a UFO would be considered extremely unusual, but for two Ohio women, seeing a UFO was the least surprising part of their experience. In June 2001, two sisters, Angie Whitmeyer and Deborah Simmons, were returning from a day of shopping in Dayton, Ohio, when a strange light in the sky caught their attention.

"We were heading home to Kingman, Ohio, on State Road 73," Deborah recalled. "It was a beautiful evening around 8:30 p.m., the air was warm and the sky crystal clear. Angie was driving and I was watching the scenery go by when I noticed a bright light in the western sky." Deborah watched in amazement as the light grew in intensity and flew towards the car at an incredible speed. "Deborah asked me what that weird light was," said Angie. "But we were close to Caesar Creek Lake and the road was pretty dark so I wasn't paying a lot of attention to it. But then it flew right in front of us so I couldn't miss it." The bright light soared past the car and hovered over the nearby treetops, casting an eerie glow over the entire area.

Whitmeyer pulled the car over onto the side of the road so they could get a better look at the unusual object. Deborah was shocked by how large and close the UFO was to them: "The light was so bright and white that you couldn't see any shape behind it.

But we could tell it was pretty big, at least as big as a house. The funny thing was that I couldn't hear any sort of engine like you would normally hear with an airplane or helicopter. It was completely silent." Suddenly, another, identical bright light swooped down from the sky and hovered a short distance away. The two sisters decided the situation was becoming too strange and tried to drive away. "That's when I discovered the car had stopped and I couldn't restart it," Angie said. "Nothing worked, the lights, the radio, it was completely dead." The two women also noticed an odd silence had descended over the area, accompanied by a strange feeling of isolation. Angie remembered that it seemed as if they were the only people in the world. "I don't remember seeing another car come by during the entire time we were there, which is really weird because at that time of an evening there's always traffic on that road. And it was just dead silent outside, no birds, nothing. It was as if we were in another world." Uncertain what to do next, Angie and her sister continued to watch the strange pair of lights when, unexpectedly, both objects shot straight up and disappeared into the night sky. The area was plunged in darkness, and oddly enough, the normal sounds of the night came back almost as if switched on. "As soon as the lights flew away," Deborah said, "the car started running again all by itself. The lights and radio were on just as they were before everything happened."

According to their watches, the strange encounter had lasted more than 20 minutes. However, when they arrived home, Deborah's husband seemed unconcerned about what they thought was a late arrival. That's when they discovered that instead of being after 9:00 p.m., as their wristwatches indicated, it was only 8:35 p.m. "It was as if the entire time we spent looking at those lights had never happened," Angie said. "But it did happen, our watches both showed we had been stuck out there for over 20 minutes, but somehow we gained that time back with a few minutes to spare. Normally we should have been home at around ten to nine, but somehow, despite what had happened, we got there early."

Distortions in Time and Space

One of the strangest aspects of some UFO encounters is the apparent distortion of time when a UFO is nearby. Researchers and writers have tried for years to understand and to interpret what happens before, during, and after a close contact with a UFO. But, many reports of time anomalies have been kept off some UFO databases because such events fall outside of the preconceived notions of what a UFO sighting should entail. Like the two Ohio sisters, others who have experienced a close contact with a UFO have reported apparent time distortions like the failure of car engines, a strange feeling of isolation (to the point where it is observed that no other vehicles or people are seen during the sighting), unusual silence, spatial changes, altered states of consciousness, and distortions in the flow of time. Generally, these anomalies disappear along with the UFO. Occasionally, however, the witnesses will suffer from unexpected relapses weeks, even years, after the initial experience. These anomalous events have created more headaches than answers for researchers who have attempted to find scientific validation for unusual UFO encounters. On the surface, some of the reported anomalies seem to be explainable using modern science. However, upon closer analysis, strange things tend to become even stranger.

Failure of Car Engines

The disruption of car motors, machinery, and electronic devices during a UFO event has been commonly reported. Thousands of these inexplicable stories have been duly recorded over the years and many volumes have been written in an attempt to understand the underlying principles involved. Mark Rodeghier of the Center for UFO Studies analyzed 441 cases in which "the car, truck, or other motor vehicle in which a witness was either riding or in near proximity to, was seemingly affected by the presence of a UFO". Headlights, radios and even flashlights were also affected." Of the vehicle failure cases summarized by Rodeghier, ten percent noted an unusual phenomenon called "spontaneous engine restarts" at the end of a sighting. In reality, this figure is probably much higher considering the amount of underreported and under-documented cases worldwide.

In these cases the car's engine would mysteriously restart without the driver turning the key. One witness said: "As soon as the UFO flew away, the car, radio, headlights, switched back on by themselves. One second everything was completely dead, and the next, everything was running smoothly as if nothing had ever happened." The witness said he was left with the feeling that his car had been stopped between the ticks of a clock: "Like time had completely vanished."

Another notable feature of many cases is the sudden unusual silence and an overwhelming feeling of isolation in the proximity of a UFO. Many people have noted that normal sounds birds, insects, and traffic suddenly stop just before and during a close UFO sighting.

A man from Wisconsin reported that he had observed a UFO hovering over the treetops directly over his head once while deer hunting. He stated that the day had been windy and the trees were swaying and creaking pretty loudly in the breeze. What made him look up was the fact that all of a sudden the forest went "completely dead". He noted that the trees had stopped moving as if "frozen in place". That is when he noticed a strange, dark, triangle-shaped object floating over the trees. "It was a little bigger than a pickup truck and was solid black. I didn't see any lights or hear any kind of sound from it." The hunter reported feeling like he was "looking up through a tunnel with me at the bottom and the UFO at the top."

I knew that I was completely alone and that no one could help me. As soon as the UFO passed overhead the forest returned to normal. The experience of such unusual sensations around a UFO may indicate that there could be a field of influence that is being emitted around a UFO. Anyone close enough to a UFO would find himself completely contained within this field. The odd effects noticed by eyewitnesses could give us some kind of indication of the true nature of these energy fields. Unfortunately, anecdotal accounts of UFO experiences have rarely been followed up with rigorous studies of their content.

UFOs and Time

Scientists brave (or foolhardy) enough to try and conduct proper research on the nature of UFOs have been unable to find satisfactory answers as to why UFOs seem to cause time distortions. Past interpretations of Einstein's physics leave little room for localized time anomalies, unless influenced by a gravitationally massive object such as a black hole. However, the new kids on the physics block, quantum and string theories may show that time and space are easier to influence than was previously thought. Some physicists believe that it is possible to engineer space-time itself and to surround a spaceship with a local space-time in such a way that locally, the light barrier remains intact, while from the outside the ship is moving at faster-than-light velocity. UFOs that seem to rapidly accelerate, change direction, or even disappear are actually operating conservatively from the viewpoint of their own internal time rates.

If someone or something came close enough to a ship that was creating its own space-time, normal time and space, as they know it, would cease to exist for them, and they would come under the influence of the artificial space-time. This could explain some of the stranger aspects of UFO encounters, such as environmental sounds disappearing, isolation, the freezing of motors and electronic devices, and the feeling of time slowing down, stretching out, and losing all meaning. The UFO is literally creating an alteration in the local state of space-time, thus generating a major distortion effect that is experienced by the witness. Within this time anomaly the perceived forward motion of time could even disappear, allowing for the past, present, and future to intrude upon one another.

A Glimpse of the Past

In 1981, Linda Taylor and her mother were travelling by car to Chorlton, a district of Manchester, England. The normally busy road became strangely empty and the two women noticed a huge light in the sky that seemed to pace their car. Linda told investigators that her car "jerked about" and slowed down despite her attempts to accelerate. Suddenly, an "old-fashioned" car appeared in the road ahead and drove straight towards the two women. At the same time the light in the sky turned into a metal disc that hovered over the main road. As the UFO moved away from Taylor and her mother, the old car vanished instantly. When the women returned home they found that two hours were missing from their trip. As with some others who have had close UFO encounters, Linda later had several odd psychic experiences and further time lapses.

Time distortions may not always occur with a visible UFO nearby. In 1980, Peter Rojcewicz, now a professor of humanities and folklore at New York's Juilliard School, was in the University of Pennsylvania library reading a UFO book suggested by another professor. As he read, Rojcewicz noticed that someone was standing in front of him. Looking up, Rojcewicz saw a very gaunt, pale man, about six feet tall and weighing around 140 pounds. The strange man wore a black suit, black shoes, a black string tie, and a bright white shirt. His suit was loose and it looked as though he had slept in it for days. "He sat down like he had dropped from the ceiling all in one movement and folded his hands on top of a stack of books in front of him," Rojcewicz said. The man asked Rojcewicz what he was doing. Rojcewicz said he was reading about flying saucers. "Have you seen a flying saucer?" the man asked. Rojcewicz said he hadn't. "Do you believe in the reality of flying saucers?" Rojcewicz said he didn't know much about them and wasn't sure he was very interested in the phenomena. The man screamed: "Flying saucers are the most important fact of the century and you are not interested?" The man then stood up, again, all in a single awkward movement, put his hand on Rojcewicz's shoulder, and said: "Go well on your purpose." With that, he left. Rojcewicz was suddenly overwhelmed by fear: "I had a sense that this man was out of the ordinary and that idea frightened me. I got up and walked around the stacks toward where the reference librarians usually are. The librarians weren't there. There were no guards there—there was nobody else in the library...I was utterly alone and terrified." The professor went back to the table where he had been reading "to get myself together. It took me about an hour. Then I got up and everything was back to normal; the people were all there." It would seem that Rojcewicz could have been placed into a separate time-space field in order for his contact to occur. The entire episode may have occurred in the blink of an eye in normal time-space. But for Rojcewicz, an entire hour passed.

One gentleman, who reported his alleged UFO abduction on an Internet forum, said that when he was being returned from an abduction to the motel room where he was staying, he "noticed that there was a person in the parking lot below us (myself and several 'Grays' were 'floating' in mid-air so I had a bird's eye view of the surroundings,) who seemed to be frozen in mid-step. Everything was dead quiet and nothing was moving. It was as if time had stopped or frozen for the few moments it took for them to transport me from a UFO back to my room that was located on the second floor of the motel." These interesting cases show that there is still a lot we have to learn from UFO reports. Investigators need to be willing to look beyond the traditional "by-the-book" questions and allow the witnesses to relate their entire experience—no matter how unusual it may be. Many researchers and databases fail to mention some of the stranger aspects of UFO encounters because they don't fit a particular belief system or bias. We can learn much more if researchers put aside their own personal feelings and allow the full information to come forward. Currently, any theories and conclusions are really little more than speculation. Nevertheless, scientists who are not afraid to look beyond the norm are every day developing new concepts in physics and the true nature of reality.

Is Britain now host to giant UFOs & squadrons of flying spheres?

Below: recent film, Saturday 21st July 2007 taken from Stratford upon Avon.

Taken from <http://www.dailymail.co.uk>

Crowds gathered to gawp at the strange lights that hovered silently over Stratford for 30 minutes

The strange episode started just after 10.30pm, when the lights were seen hovering slowly over the town before three of them formed a triangular shape with one positioned just to the right.

A few minutes later a fifth came into view travelling towards the others at breakneck speed before slowing down and stopping a short distance away.

Sceptics dismissed the UFOs as nothing more than hot air balloons, fireworks or even lanterns which had broken loose from a local rugby club.

Others, however, claimed the speed and agility of the objects was unlike any known aircraft and said the odd movement, lack of noise and the length of time in the air discounted any man-made explanation. Tom Hawkes, who captured these amazing images, spotted the lights during his girlfriend Kate Lyall's birthday at the One Elm pub.

He and the 15 other revellers were in the bar when they spotted some commotion outside.

Tom, 30, said: "We walked outside and there was at that time a growing crowd of about 60 people looking up at something in the sky. "I saw this light appear, then three others. They came over our heads in formation but then manoeuvred into different positions.

"Three had formed a triangular shape and one was to the right. Then another one came hurtling towards the rest at what looked like a very fast speed. But as it neared them it suddenly slowed and stopped altogether.

"By this time more people had poured out onto the street. Two pubs had emptied, some people had come out of their houses and drivers slowed their cars.

"The objects were there for about half an hour. It was very eerie because they didn't make any sound and they stayed still before moving slowly beyond the horizon. There were no stars in the sky, just them. "It was the most extraordinary thing I've ever seen and the way in which everyone gathered in the street to watch them reminded me of a scene from Independence Day."

The extraordinary scenes were also witnessed by some of the staff of the One Elm pub. Chef Kern Griffiths, 26, said: "I saw five lights; we all thought they were hot air balloons at first because the glowing spheres looked like a burst of flames. But I couldn't see any outline of the balloon itself and they were travelling far too fast.

"Suddenly someone shouted 'look' and there were these bright dots fizzing across the sky.

"It was weird; they way they moved did look alien. Some people reckon they're fireworks but they were lit up in the sky for far too long, the local rugby club say they were lanterns that blew loose over the weekend but these objects were far too fast and too high up.

"They were unlike any aircraft I've seen. It's a mystery."

Hillary Potter from The British Earth Aerial Mystery Society (BEAMS) said they were being inundated with similar cases from across the country but said it was rare for such phenomena to be witnessed by so many people.
